Reverse Mentors
Younger Workers Can Help Veterans Stay on Right Track
Stephanie Stephens

Features
It's a lot of fun being a "digital mentor" in Wounded Warrior Project's e-mentoring program. With digital mentors, I have a sense of purpose and a strong connection to our veterans. It's not just about technology; it's about people and helping them through challenging times. It's a rewarding experience that I highly recommend to others.

What's more, the veterans are grateful for the support and encouragement they receive from the digital mentors. It's heartwarming to see the positive impact their mentorship is having on their lives.

It's an excellent way to give back to our military community and support our heroes who have served our country.

Normal reverse mentoring may not be practiced in your office, but it is quick and easy to do. It can improve team relations, increase employee engagement, and help a younger employee learn different skills such as "mentoring.""
